Two orphan slides from the Hunt family vacation, August 1964, found loose in storage. The rest of that roll is likely still boxed up and waiting to be found.

Photo One

From a family slide set, summer 1964. Pacific Northwest border memory. Found while sorting old boxes. Point Roberts.

That’s the Dodge Dart — the Jetsons car — with me in the center, my brother Mick, and my mom, Mary Alice, peeking out from the back seat. This was Point Roberts in the summer of 1964. Point Roberts is part of the U.S., but by road you get there by driving through Canada.

A bit of 1960s litter on the ground, but that’s easy to clean up in Photoshop. My brother and I look like we should trade pants. This is another orphan photo that fell out of a box. Stuck in time.

Photo Two

The parliament building in Victoria. Those ears, I don’t think I ever grew into them. I’m eight.
